

Fresh Opportunities.

Matthew Heemskerck,
Business Practice Associate

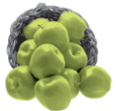

Practising law is not a job, it's a career. Often, you are expected to know right out of law school how you want to spend the next twenty or thirty years. But what if you change your mind?

At Alexander Holburn, we care more about having the right people than where they are sitting.

When associate Matt Heemskerck concluded his passion for business outweighed his interest in litigation, the firm helped him transition from barrister to solicitor. As a new member of the business team, Matt received close mentoring from two business partners to help him get up to speed. Today he's a valued member of that team, and delighted he only had to move to a different floor, not to a different firm.
